P R E F A C E .

THE following pages are the result of investigations carried on at occasional intervals of leisure during several years past. To start with I had a record prepared by Mr. Chester Daniell which was quite complete for the first half of the present century and a part of the last century. In carrying on and completing the work thus begun, I have had occasion to use Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, Bond's History and Genealogies of Watertown, and Morse's Genealogies of Sherborn and Holliston, with occasional references to other printed works. Most of the facts, however, that are recorded here I have myself copied from the town records of Needham, Dedham, Medfield, and Mendon, and from the Probate Records and registered deeds of Suffolk, Norfolk, Middlesex, and Worcester counties. I have consulted by proxy the records of Milford, Holliston, and Upton. I am indebted to various members of the family for assistance, particularly in regard to recent names and dates.

Inasmuch as the family has no records or traditions or relics (so far as I am aware) that date more than a century back, all that can be known of those who lived before that time must be derived from the records of the towns, counties, and parishes where the actors lived; and it would have been interesting to quote more at large from such sources than the space at my command would admit. The appendix, I hope, will be found of sufficient interest to repay perusal. A little insight can be gained into the life and habits of our ancestors by knowing what they possessed; and on that account I have inserted some items that are quite insignificant in themselves. Old inventories of estates are very interesting reading to any one of antiquarian tastes. The autograph and seal of Robert Daniell are copied from his will, in which the former is very distinct, but the latter quite imperfect, part of the right side being indistinguishable.

The amount of time and labor required to complete even so brief a record as the following, is by no means inconsiderable. Some may think the time and labor ill bestowed. No disputed property is at stake; no unclaimed estate of fabulous value in England is supposed to be waiting for an heir in our family; no attempt has been made to connect the family with the titled aristocracy of the old country; I have not even selected from works on heraldry a coat of arms to please the fancy of those who like such things; and furthermore, I expect no pecuniary recompense for my labors. Nevertheless I hope there are some members of the family who will sympathize with me in the satisfaction of possessing a pretty full and accurate genealogy of the family for the past two centuries and a half.

I shall be thankful to any one who will point out any errors or supply any omissions in the record.

To those who think it worth while to continue this record, or make it more complete in individual cases, I offer the following suggestions:—Have this pamphlet bound, with a dozen or twenty blank leaves of writing-paper. Enter:—names in full—date and place of births, marriages and deaths—places of residence—changes of residence—occupations—schools attended—church connections—membership of societies—public offices of honor or trust—travels and incidents—tastes and peculiarities—interesting anecdotes—contributions to literature, etc. etc. etc. The fuller this record is made, the better. Future generations will certainly be grateful for such information regarding their predecessors, and the future historian and genealogist of the family will find his labors materially lightened thereby.

THE DANIELL FAMILY.

THE name Daniell appears among the earliest settlers of various parts of New-England. Of those who settled in the vicinity of Boston were,—Robert Daniell of Watertown, about 1636, whose descendants in one line are traced in these pages; Joseph Daniell of Dedham, whose name occurs in a list of subscribers to form the Medfield society in 1649, and who probably removed to Portsmouth, N. H.; and William Daniell of Dorchester, who was admitted freeman in 1648. There is no proof that these three were relatives, though there is some reason to think that Robert and Joseph were brothers.

The name is a common one in England, if we may judge from the long list in the Encyclopedia of Heraldry. In that list the name Daniell occurs twenty-six times, Daniel five times, and Daniels once.

The various spellings of the name that are found in old copies of deeds, wills, &c., at least so far as the family under consideration is concerned, are undoubtedly owing to the caprice or carelessness of scribes and copyists. A search for original autographs has shown that all whose names are here recorded, with a few unimportant exceptions, from the first Robert down to the present time, have spelled the name Daniell. It is probable that the addition of a final s in other branches of the family is a growth of comparatively recent times. There may be families, however, whose ancestors brought the name Daniels from the old country.
